According to the Worker Protection and Working Environment Act, employees elect protective representatives (Verneombud) to look after their interests regarding safety, health and welfare as required by the provisions of the law.

As per the enclosed translation, it appears in § 24.5 that the "King will provide further regulations as to the number of protective representatives as to election, including qualifications for voting right and eligibility", etc.

As we do not have a union within our organization it is up to the employer to appoint an election committee. May I suggest Amoco Norway ~~elect~~ ^{appoint} the following people:
